Project Concept Form

What is the "big picture" impact that you believe your funded research or project will make?

What specific changes do you expect to make in the community or among beneficiaries as a result?

What are the major steps you will need to take to make these changes happen?

You might have a vague idea about how to answer these questions when it comes to your future funded research project, but the person who reviews your proposal will not. Putting these answers in writing can work wonders when it's time to write your proposal; clarity is essential when you're trying to convince a reviewer that your project is worthwhile!

That's why the ORSP created a Project Concept Form, an optional online tool that can help you solidify your research project ideas before we start the application process. Not only does the Project Concept Form help you craft your ideas, it helps us to find funding sources that match your research interests, and is a great way to let us know that you're interested in external funding.

Fill out the Project Concept Form with as much information as possible, and click "submit" to send to ORSP.
